

DECEMBER 20, 1952.

AY, DECEMBER 20, 1952.

The picture above is of two pieces of sculpture which will be seen by East Londoners in a forthcoming exhibition at the Ann Bryant Art Gallery on December 29 by the South African sculptor, Herman Wald. The figure on the left is of a Native girl dancing. Right: "The Gossipers"—Mr. Wald's interpretation (still in plaster) of that age-old failing of the gentler sex—two women exchanging confidences.

SCULPTURE EXHIBITION

Opening on December 29

A taste of what to expect in the forthcoming exhibition of sculpture at the Ann Bryant Art Gallery on December 29, by the South African sculptor, Herman Wald, was given to a representative of the Daily Dispatch yesterday when he saw some of the

The picture above is of two pieces of sculpture which will be seen by East Londoners in a forthcoming exhibition at the Ann Bryant Art Gallery on December 29 by the South African sculptor, Herman Wald. The figure on the left is of a Native girl dancing. Right: "The Gossipers"—Mr. Wald's interpretation (still in plaster) of that age-old failing of the gentler sex—two women exchanging confidences.

SCULPTURE EXHIBITION

Opening on December 29

A taste of what to expect in the forthcoming exhibition of sculpture at the Ann Bryant Art Gallery on December 29, by the South African sculptor, Herman