

16/11/88

WINGS OF POETRY

THE poetry of flight is captured by these birds sailing over a pool of water in Salisbury. This attractive feature was recently erected on the veranda of John Boyne House, a branch of the Standard Bank Ltd, on the corner of Speke Avenue and Inez Terrace. The birds were fashioned in bronze by a Johannesburg sculptor, Michael Wald, at the request of Mr Evan Campbell, chairman of the bank in Rhodesia, and are lit at night. What kind of birds are they? See Cabbages and Kings, Page 16.